The Center for Fine Art Photography presents its newest exhibition, New Normal, on display in the Center's gallery from November 5 – November 27, 2010. Forty-four photographers representing Canada, Egypt, France, and the United States will be exhibiting their work in the Center's gallery. There will be an artists and public reception on Friday, November 5 from 6:00 pm to 9:00 pm.

Consider the challenges of the era, economic, environmental, and political and respond to the fundamentally shifting norms shared about beauty, gender roles, and spiritual belief. New Normal addresses the evolving ideals of social relationships, ecological engagement, media and culture in our ever changing world.

Edward Robinson, the Associate Curator of the Wallis Annenberg Photography Department at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art (LACMA), is juror for the New Normal exhibition. Mr. Robinson earned a PhD at Oxford University in the History of Art and Photography and a BA in Art History at Brown University. He has served as well as the Editor of Blind Spot magazine, has published a number of articles on photographic history, and has taught at New York University and Yale University.

Founded in 2004 to promote and support the art of photography through exhibitions and educational programs, The Center for Fine Art Photography is a nonprofit organization supported by donations, grants and memberships. The Center currently has more than 1,300 members representing 33 countries worldwide. With three galleries, classrooms and a digital and traditional darkroom in Fort Collins, Colorado, the Center's online gallery gives photographers and photography enthusiasts from all over the globe an opportunity to engage with the Center.
